Presents:

Keynote Address: Writing Matters

By

William Van Cleave

Educational consultant and author of three books, including Writing Matters: Developing Sentence Skills in Students of All Ages.

In this lively and engaging keynote, Van Cleave will use current research on writing to help participants understand the issues confronting struggling writers. He will emphasize working memory and the number of simultaneous demands the writing process makes on students of all ages. He will conclude the presentation with recommendations for assisting students with the various components of writing.

About William Van Cleave: William Van Cleave is in private practice as an educational consultant whose specialties include morphology and written expression. A nationally recognized speaker in the United States, he has presented on effective teaching practices at conferences and schools since 1995. While his own background is in language-based learning difficulties, the strategies William promotes are effective for students of all skill levels and abilities. His high level of enthusiasm and energy, his interactive style, and his passion for working with teachers make him an effective presenter, whether he is visiting a school and sharing with its faculty or presenting at a national conference.
